"Student Life in Paris" was the subject of a subtle and humorous little talk made by Mrs. George J. Bull before the members of the Art Club of Richmond yesterday afternoon. But recently come from that fascinating Prench capital, where she has resided the politure was an ever-shifting and the picture was an ever-shifting panorama, wherein were set gay students, old priests, gleaming lights, and the picture was an ever-shifting the light panorama, wherein were set gay students, old priests, gleaming lights, and the picture was an ever-shifting panorama, wherein were set gay students, old priests, gleaming lights, desolate garrets and breaking, strugging hearts, with the dream a great art set up over it all.

There were stories of quaint restautions of the picture was the sum of this confererea, bright with Jesting Rives. These tales were simply told. The keynote of Mrs. Bull's little talk was the great need of help from the big, happy world for these less fortunate students of art, whose souls must needs have the atmosphere of this Old World city as well as the masters' instruction, to be found there, in order to go forward in their work. There are no dangers in Paris for serious girls and serious men. The little stories were done in all too short a time. It was a charming gathering of delightful people, and Mrs. Bull is a gracious and gifted woman, bringing into the pathetic and humorous bits that she relates a world of brightness. The club was decorated in great Jars of daisles, and tea was served later in the deternion. Mrs. Alternation. Mrs. Richard Evelyn Byrd has the afternoon. Miss Adele Clarke in troduced the speaker.
